#1: Clerk decries 'tyranny' after Michigan strips her of running election

LANSING — A small-town clerk who refused mandatory maintenance of her voting tabulator says she is hiring attorneys to fight government "tyranny" after Michigan officials stripped her of authority to conduct next week's municipal election.

Adams Township Clerk Stephanie Scott, a Republican, told Bridge Michigan she does not trust the machine she inherited upon taking office this year and wants to preserve any old data on it, echoing unfounded claims that tabulators may have been rigged against former President Donald Trump in 2020.

Scott also ignored state requests to confirm whether she would sign off on legally required "logic and accuracy testing" but told Bridge she still planned to conduct that testing on Wednesday night even as she explored the possibility of ditching the tabulator to conduct a hand-counted election.

The embattled clerk described her feud as a battle over "who owns the tabulator and who has rights" to inspect or service it.

"The county clerk's office and now Secretary of State are demanding I drop off my machine for unfettered access, and God only knows doing what to it," she said. "When you have the fox guarding the hen house, somebody's got to stand up and guard those hens." ...

Kast, the Republican Hillsdale County Clerk now tasked with running the Adams Township election, said she is "well prepared" to do so.

While she declined to discuss Scott's accusations, Kast told Bridge Michigan she is not aware of any problems with Hart voting machines used in Hillsdale County and said local elections "are run to the utmost integrity."

Election officials in other parts of the state told Bridge they were surprised by Scott's recalcitrance and noted that clerks can actually face criminal charges if they refuse to perform required duties.

"People make decisions that sometimes they should regret later," said Livonia Clerk Susan Nash, a Republican, who told Bridge Michigan she had been contacted by activists who also wanted her to refuse tabulator maintenance.

"I didn't listen to people in the beginning of the year, and I did what I knew was right," Nash said. "It'd be nice if this (2020) election came to an end."

I'm Joe. ... So I got a phone call ... late yesterday. And it was from Stephanie Lambert, and Stephanie. If you don't know is a lawyer from Michigan that has several cases, one in Pennsylvania and one in Michigan. And she has several lawsuits that have been filed. But now there's new information and expert report. And that doesn't just point to the fraud. It aligns with all the fraud that's happened across the country. But it also proves that that the people at the state level that the governor Whitmer they're complicit in this behavior. The Secretary of State's are complicit in this behavior. They're actually designing an entire system to steal the voice the American people and the election machines...

Stephanie Lambert LawyerForScottHillsdale 04:04

So Joe, I'm an attorney in Michigan... I represent Stephanie Scott from Adams Township. She's a township clerk. And we filed suit because the Secretary of State in Michigan wanted her to perform an update on her tabulator and she was concerned that they would wipe data that she was required to preserve by federal law, and so she refused to perform this update and Michigan State Police seized her tabulator as a result of her repeated performance update. They stripped her of her election duties unlawfully, and they even took her paper ballots. So Miss Scott started to wonder what are they trying to hide? Right this seems as if it's a cover up. So she had her EPB [Electronic Polling Book] stick which is the USB stick that goes into a poll book, analyzed, frantically analyzed and there was a FOIA request for the official state data regarding who voted. And the data is off by 11 and a half percent. And what's really interesting is that the Secretary of State ordered all of the local clerk's to delete their EPB stick data in November. of 2020, which is a violation of law. ... It is original data. It's the only place that that election data exists. We have a report from Ben Cotton that details what's on that EPB stick that's not preserved anywhere else. And most importantly, it's needed to reconcile an election that's in question. So she ordered all of these EPB sticks to be deleted. And what we found is that there are voters that voted in Adams Township that the numbers match what was what the campus results were, that differ from the official state results that were given with the FOIA results. So it's off by 11 and a half percent. So the Secretary of State has voters that are unique on its list by the election, that differ and are not included with the Adams Township results that are from the EPB stick, and likewise that ... EPB stick has voters on it that are not at the state level. So the data is off by 11 and a half percent, obviously, a large amount.

Joe Oltmann_Conservative-Daily.com 06:38

So if we were to take 11 and a half percent, so 11 and a half percent and I were to take that across the 83 counties. That is approximately 800,000 votes. Is that right?

Stefanie Lambert_lawyerForScottHillsdale 06:55

It's a huge number. And that's not the only findings from this report. That's really important for people to know. The contract states that the voter roll that is used with the EV [Early Voting] stick in the poll book is also installed prior to the election on the tabulator. Which there's no reason for that. That's supposed to be a counting machine. This allows potentially the vendor or a bad actor through the internet to see who's voting and how they're voting and allows for manipulation in real time ...

Joe Oltmann_Conservative-Daily.com 07:35

So this is in the actual contract, this is in the RFP [Request for Proposal] for Hart and for Dominion in Michigan, correct?

Stefanie Lambert_lawyerForScottHillsdale 07:45

Correct. They admit to it, right? So I can't think of one good reason as to why we need a voter roll on the tabulator. And obviously, that would be original data that should also be preserved and that these updates can wipe. So you know, these are things that we absolutely have to fix in Michigan and throughout this country moving forward. ...

Stefanie Lambert_lawyerForScottHillsdale 09:38

Let me make sure that we have the data accurate. There are voters listed at the state level that are not listed on Stephanie Scott's records that are on the EPB stick. Okay, there are voters also on the EPB stick that are not listed at the state level and these are the certified results.

Stefanie Lambert_lawyerForScottHillsdale 17:06

... We have local clerks that can't see what's happening with these machines. There's no transparency for the clerk that's in charge of doing this. That's a huge problem. We've given all control to the vendors at that point. So we really need to change how these elections are happening moving forward so that the clerk who is charged with that duty of running an accurate and fair election can actually ensure that that's happening. And she's not getting directions from the Secretary of State to delete data. And she's not told by the vendor that she can't see what's inside of the machine and that she must run updates that she's concerned will wipe data. So we really need to move until this problem is fixed back to a hand count in my opinion by each clerk to ensure that the votes are actually being counted accurately. ...

Stefanie Lambert_lawyerForScottHillsdale 20:27

That's right. And that's what actually the expert Ben cotton is willing to testify to that we currently have an election system in place throughout this country that you cannot audit. If you don't have all of the pieces of the data to reconcile each and every piece. You can't audit. ...

Stefanie Lambert_lawyerForScottHillsdale 33:20

... And I think that it's really important to look at this email that the Secretary of State said around sent around in November of 20, telling the clerk's that they must delete this data. This is a federal code 20701 and 20702 require that election records have to be kept for 22 months. This is a federal election that was held in Adams Township, that the Secretary of State ordered that local clerk to violate the law.

Stefanie Lambert_lawyerForScottHillsdale 37:46

I know that there is analysis taking place in a number of different jurisdictions in Michigan, and that data will be revealed probably in the near future.

Lambert_lawyerForScottHillsdale 42:34

... And so Stephanie Scott, in my opinion, is a hero for pushing back on the Secretary of State and insisting that she will follow the law and she will reveal what happened in her Township and she'll continue to do her job that she was elected to do. *****

#3: Nye County Nevada commissioners vote for paper ballots

by WorldTribune Staff, March 17, 2022

In what may become a trend, Nye County, Nevada has become the first in the nation to recommend a switch to exclusively paper ballots in future elections. Nye County commissioners voted unanimously [5:0] on Tuesday to recommend the county eliminate electronic voting machines and move to all-paper, hand-counted elections for both the 2022 primary and general elections.

"With the paper ballots, hand-counted at the precinct level, decentralized — we're going against what the forces want," Jim Marchant, a Republican candidate for secretary of state, told the Nye County commissioners. "They want centralized [systems] so they can manipulate it. So if we go against that and get back to decentralized ... that's how we're going to guarantee that we have a fair and transparent election." ...

The vote requested but did not order that Nye County Clerk Sandra Merlino make the changes. Merlino said she would look into making the changes for the 2022 general election ...

Prof. David Clements, who is working with groups nationwide investigating election fraud and canvassing results, said in a March 16 Telegram commentary: "Every county should be sprinting towards this solution. Racing one another on who can get rid of the machines faster. But 'We the People' have to show up at these county meetings and demand action." ...

That is why it is important for Americans to "attend your next county commission meeting. Organize and get others to attend. Hundreds," Clements wrote. "Use the time for public comment to voice your concerns over rigged cheat machines. Demand a no confidence vote on your corrupt election machines. Keep showing up, increase your numbers, and if necessary invite experts in the movement to help advocate."

"Transition to all paper voting. No machines. Imagine casting a real vote in your next election," Clements added. "Fix your county. Fix your country." *****
